

Case study: Mersey Care

Mersey Care NHS Foundation Trust was an early adopter of Declare when the NHS launched the Guidance on managing conflicts of interest in 2017.

The guidance requires all employees, not just decision-makers, to declare gifts, donations, hospitality and anything that could be, or perceived to be, a potential conflict of interest with a view to strengthening the transparency agenda in the sector. For health organisations, the challenge was finding the resources to dedicate to this time-consuming task.

Our fully integrated end-to-end solution helped the Trust to comply fully with the conflicts of interest regulations, while saving them time and money in the process.

“An online system created with and for use by NHS Foundation Trusts and CCGs. It provides an easy to use system for staff to submit their declaration of interests, has increased transparency and has ensured the Trust is compliant with NHSE Guidance.”

Key outcomes:

- Over 800 decision-making employees have been registered on Civica Declare.
- Trust employees are able to make their declarations digitally, quickly and easily on any device.
- A well maintained and up to date public register of interests, instantly visible via the Trust's website.
- Transparent, real-time reporting helps increase public confidence in decision making and where taxpayers' money is spent.
- No more manual paperwork and data entry, delivering tangible cost savings of over £40k for the Trust and efficiencies for staff.
